April 14 - June 26, 2011

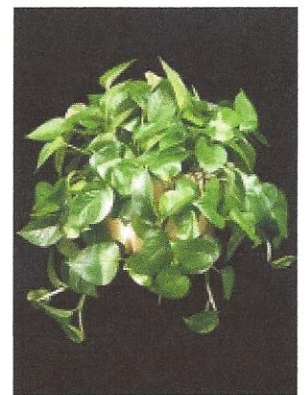

Come see our solution for adding more green to urban environments!

Interior Plantscaping Increasing Productivity and Employee Morale

Why have interior plants...

Because...

- Adding plants to your office does wonders for employee health and morale
- Live plants clean the air of toxins like ammonia, formaldehyde, carbon monoxide, benzene and xylene
- Indoor plants bring health benefits to your body (Complaints about headaches, stress, heart/circulation symptoms and colds decrease when indoor plants are present.)
- Live plants make people feel calmer and more optimistic
- Studies show indoor plants reduce fatigue, coughs, sore throats and other cold-related illnesses by increasing humidity levels and decreasing dust
- Indoor plants are pleasing to the eye
- Adding plants to your office enhances employee creativity and productivity

Centra Health is a complex health care organization dedicated to improving the health of Virginia.

Centra Health has been working with our Buckingham Greenery Team for over 27 years.

We spoke with Beverly Daniels, Centra Business Center Material Management, about her overall experience with Buckingham Greenery.

- What do you feel are the main benefits of having live green plants in your office?
Live plants add beauty and interest to a space. I feel they are more appealing to the eye than silk plants.
- How do live plants compliment the environment for health and wellness?
The beautiful gardens provide a distraction to our patients and visitors and provide benefits of clean air. Studies have shown that patients that have rooms with a view of plants recover faster, require less pain medication, lower their blood pressure and reduces stress

It's spring, the scent of flowers is in the air. As temperatures rise and days get longer, plants start to grow and so do the populations of insects and mites lurking in them.

Overnight, spider mites and their webs appear. This is the time to take control over your pesky pest population!

Start inspecting and controlling now for these pests so you can enjoy your green healthy plants!

Here is how!
